Annemarie and Ellen are two heroic girls. Can a Lutheran and a Jew get along? This story takes place during the World War II. Annemarie and Ellen's adventures continue through this time period while Annemarie is fiercely running to hide her friend, Ellen. Annemarie and Ellen's adventure continues and soon freedom will be earned. Annemarie and Ellen are very divergent, but have many similarities. Whilst fighting for their lives they continue to be the best of friends.

Ellen is a dark haired Jew that is very timid and is afraid of the soldiers that might kill her. She is concerned for her family and is desperate to feel their heat and arms around her. She lives in Copenhagen, Denmark. She had always wanted to be an actor as her occupation, when she gets older. Annemarie is very confident and feel nervous about Ellen's behavior lately. She had been distant and she didn't know why. Annemarie has light hair and is tall for her age. She loves to run.

Do two different character brought up in different families alike? Read on to find out.

Both Annemarie and Ellen are the same age, and best of friends. Both girls are Danish and attend the same school. They also will eventually get into very deep trouble with the Germans.

Annemarie will get into trouble because she is helping a Jew and Ellen for her religion. Now, do you realize even the most different of people have something in common.

How can you tell people are different, but have connection? Here are some things about Annemarie and Ellen that are different that also keep them connected to each other. Ellen is a dark, haired Jew with a Jewish star necklace. She thinks that the necklace keeps her safe. Annemarie is a light, blond haired Lutheran. Ellen wants to do drama and acting, but as Annemarie's occupation she wants to be an athlete, especially a runner. Ellen is a more timid and is frightened easier than Annemarie is. Ellen has never seen the waters or the beach before, although Annemarie has often. Ellen loves the city, where as Annemarie loves the countryside. Although, they are different people and have different ideas, personalities, and actions, they have many connections and also have many things in common.

Annemarie and Ellen have many similarities and differences. Even the most different of people have at least something in common. A Lutheran and a Jew have different ideas, behavior and feelings, but there are many common things they share in common.
